“Counting Stars”

Ryan Tedder, Arr. Mark Brymer

Counting Stars was released on June 14th, 2013 and recorded in August of 2012. The producer and songwriter is Ryan Tedder, who also happens to be the lead singer of OneRepublic, who produced the song. “Counting Stars” is about not letting money and other people’s expectations drive your journey through life. In this song, we have a quarter note clap, provided by Part 1, and then an added eighth note clap, provided by Part 2. We have a switch of harmony and melody between both parts multiple times throughout the song. We worked really hard on this show, and we hope you enjoy it!

“Humble and Kind”

Lori McKenna, Arr. Roger

Emerson

“Humble and Kind” is a song that shows that if you have a lot, to help others to make them happy and to let them know they are important. This song includes two vocal parts, Part 1 and 2, and a piano accompaniment. It was originally recorded by country artist Tim McGraw. The importance of this song is telling people to be grateful for what you have, using your time to listen to others. Being humble means you do things out of the kindness of your heart without the expectation of anything in return. I hope you enjoy this lovely song on how to be humble and kind.

“Colors of Winter”

Amy F.

Bernon

The song “Colors of Winter” is written by Amy F. Bernon. “Colors of Winter” reflects on winter and how it may be thought of as bland, chilly, and even saddening. But once you look deeper into the season, it is discovered that winter is much more, as it can have beautiful scenery, with snow and a pretty palette of colors. The ranges of the song were slightly difficult to learn, but the way they mesh together creates a beautiful sound.

“You Will Be Found”

Pasek/Paul, Arr. Mac

Huff

Sad. Unheard. Lost. Alone. Depressed. Disappearing. Hope. These are all words that we came up with in class about how the start of this song makes us feel. We made a connection about how in the beginning it sounds really sad and gloomy, and how later in the song, it gives us hope and courage to reach out. This song is about how you can feel lost, and alone but if you don’t have hope, you can’t reach out for help. You can never be seen if you don’t try. This song was notable in the Broadway musical, “Dear Evan Hansen” and later in the movie adaptation of “Dear Evan Hansen.” It was originally sung by Ben Platt. It was hard learning this song, because we learned this the most recently, and it has three parts, compared to the two parts we were used to. Overall, this song shows struggle, but also peace. It conveys us the idea that we all can get the help we need, if we just reach out.

“Yonder Come Day”

Arr. Judith Cook

Tucker

“Yonder Come Day” was the first full song we learned this school year. As a class we learned not to overpower each other with different parts in order to let the melody shine through. “Yonder Come Day” is a song that got its roots from the Georgia Sea Islands. The people would sing it on these islands to celebrate their culture together. Singer Bessy Jones played a big part in the creation of the song along with many other artists throughout the decades. What makes “Yonder Come Day” so special is that everybody who sings it can add something to make it their own whether they change the order, lyrics, or add an instrument. We added our own spin by arranging our own ending. “Yonder Come Day” will be an ever changing song advancing with the years.

“Something Told the Wild Geese”

Poem by Rachel Field, Music by Andy

Beck

“Something Told the Wild Geese” is a piece inspired by the poem written by Rachel Field in 1934. It tells the story of nature telling Geese to travel south for winter, but our class also talked about the deeper meaning of embracing change. As 8th graders, soon we all will experience big changes in our lives that may be difficult but we too have to embrace. This song has three different parts that come together in a beautiful harmony. We hope you enjoy it!

Program Notes by Olivia Shoenrock

Something told the wild geese, It was time to go.
Though the fields lay golden, Something whispered,—‘Snow.’
Leaves were green and stirring, Berries, luster-glossed,
But beneath warm feathers, Something cautioned,—‘Frost.’
All the sagging orchards, Steamed with amber spice,
But each wild breast stiffened, At remembered ice.
Something told the wild geese, It was time to fly,—
Summer sun was on their wings, Winter in their cry.

“Waving Through a Window”

Pasek/Paul, Arr. Roger Emerson

“Waving Through a Window” is an anxious, and at times timid, piece with music and lyrics written by Benj Pasek and Justin Paul for the original Broadway musical “Dear Evan Hansen”. This song is about feeling like you’re not being seen or heard by the people around you, and being so scared of doing something wrong that you’ve given up on trying to be seen and heard. Those emotions are not only conveyed through the lyrics, but also through the chords and notes, which are played at a dissonance to create tension in the piece. The most difficult part of this song to learn was probably the ohs and ahs, since there are no real words, only notes, but it was worth it to support my favorite part of the song, which is the three soloists who start off individually, and then blend together into a harmonious trio, backed up by those ohs and ahs. When listening to the song, really put yourself in Evan, the character who originally sang the song in the musical’s shoes, and feel how awkward and nervous he is about everything in his life, and enjoy this emotional experience and beautiful sound.

Soloists: Alexsa Cabinta, Chloe McSheehy, and Jixing Mu

“Imagine”

John Lennon, Arr. Mac Huff

The song “Imagine”, by John Lennon was one of the first songs we learned together as a class this year. John Lennon was a former member of the Beatles and created the song in 1971 hoping his song would grab the attention of the world. This song is about bringing peace and unity to the world. The song starts off in a solo, then goes into a small group, and then ends all together, showing that you may start off alone, but in the end everyone is united. I enjoyed learning this song because of the way the lyrics fit into the way it is sung, and the blend between all of the parts.
